Soul Selfie Soirée

The world seems divided. People are lonely, yet find it difficult to come together to talk and find things in common.

But that is exactly what's needed right now—for us to sit down with each other and find the common humanity in each other.

This is exactly what Heather Carter does in her writing and speaking engagements and Soul Selfie Soirées.

Heather's battle with Leukemia in 2015 prompted her to capture what she refers to as "soul-selfies" — candid reflections on life that are raw, poignant, and unfiltered.

At a Soul Selfie Soirée, a 1/2 day women's retreat, Heather shares her story, but most importantly helps others share theirs.

Our messes and "common plagues of the heart" offer us many chances to encourage each other and find things in common, even if they are our deep fears, screw-ups, and struggles.
