Soul Selfie Soirée

Heather's battle with Leukemia in 2015 prompted her to capture what she refers to as "soul-selfies"—candid reflections on life that are raw, poignant, and unfiltered.

Through sharing her struggles in real-time, she soon learned that she wasn't the only one suffering. She continues to write today, because even though her Leukemia is in remission, the diseases of the Soul are chronic. She is confident that she will never run out of material!

At her Soul Selfie Soirées, Heather continues to "go first" so others feel safe to "go next." God has given each person a unique story, and at these events Heather models how even our shortcomings can be used to shine a light on God's goodness, graciousness and gift of redemption.

Our "common plagues of the heart"—diseases like worry, fear, control, comparison, etc.—offer us many chances to connect in vulnerable ways.

The Trauma, Drama and Minutiae of everyday life are all part of our story. At these interactive women's events, the women will unpack how to practice the presence of God in all of it.
